REGISTRATION DAY

The officials in charge of registration in Bethel urgently request all men between the ages of 21 and 36 to go to their regular voting place in Odeon Hall to be registered as early as possible on Wednesday, Oct. 16. The registration place will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

This request is made in order to avoid having too many to register in the evening. Men in Albany and Mason are to register in Bethel.

GOULD LOSES 7-0

Old "Dame Fortune" laid a heavy hand on the Gould Eleven last Saturday to deprive them of what looked like another victory as the team reeled off four first downs and started two marches; that the visitors were unable to stop until Gould fumbled on both drives. Wight, playing with a badly injured hand, which was heavily bound, found it almost impossible to hang on to the ball. But here is where "Dame Fortune" stepped in and stripped Gould bare of practically all its offensive power and its backfield defense. First Buddy Clough was removed from the game with a severe head injury which deprived the team of its captain, signal caller, only passer, line backer, and its tower of strength on the defense. Hardly had this blow fallen before Bud Ireland was lost for the remainder of the game with a broken nose and a leg injury. That meant the loss of Gould's greatest scoring threat as well as an excellent kicker and pass receiver. The team, however, "stuck to its guns", and at the end of the first half with the score 0-0 still had an edge with six first downs rung up to only one for Bucksport.

In the second half Bucksport "woke up" to the fact that Gould's secondary defense filled with inexperienced players was a mark for a passing game. They passed four times in the half completing three of them but one clicked for 20 yards and the only score of the game. Bethel fans were keenly disappointed because the team could not show its true strength throughout the game but this year the same thing may happen a number of times as Gould's reserve stock is way below par, especially in the backfield. There are a number of boys trying hard but who have not played before and need experience.

The visitors were a hard fighting team and deserve praise for their spirit and determination. The ground attack was not strong and failed completely in the pinches. They chalked up only four first downs during the entire game on their running attack. Passing accounted for three more and of course the one that clicked for a touchdown was the bright spot for Bucksport.

For Bucksport, Nickless at end, Wescott in the backfield and their two 190 pound tackles were their tower of strength.

The Gould team, with their spirits low, realizing their two key men were lost for the game, put up a game fight to the very last.

TORONTO MAN IN HOSPITAL AFTER GILEAD ROAD CRASH

Harold W. Nichols, a salesman from Toronto, Ont., was badly cut early Saturday evening when his car left the road near the Howard Taylor place in Gilead. After first aid treatment he was taken to the Rumford hospital, suffering lacerations of the knee, left hand and left ear. He also received a cut under the eye.

The car crashed through a guard rail and down an embankment where it overturned. The car was badly damaged. It is said that Nichols was blinded by lights of a truck. The accident was investigated by State Officer John K. Maguire.

EX-LEGIONNAIRES PLEASE NOTICE

It is the duty of all Legionnaires to join the Post in their district. Remember the Preamble of the Legion: "For God and Country we associate ourselves for the following purpose: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America."

It is your duty to do so, so that the Legion can do their part in the same. The more members we have the more we will be able to do.

You are invited to attend the George A. Mundt Post, No. 81 American Legion Friday, Oct. 11, at 8:15 p. m.

MARTINSON—MIDDLETON

Miss Martha E. Middleton, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Willis P. Middleton, Acton, Mass., and Dr. Melvin S. Martinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian A. Martinson, Concord, Mass., were united in marriage Sept. 21 at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Albert Brown of Spencer, Mass. Rev. George G. Parker, minister of the Congregational Church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. George Dudman, Darien, Conn., a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Edward Martinson, brother of the groom, was best man. Lucy Ann Dudman was flower girl. A reception was held at the home.

Mrs. Martinson attended Wheaton College and graduated from Wheelock School, Boston. She taught for two years at the Peter Bulkeley School, Dr. Martinson, a graduate of Gould Academy, graduated from Tufts College and Tufts Medical School, and is internist at Worcester Memorial Hospital.

The line showed great promise on the defense as they bottled up the visitors' running attack.

LOCAL PEOPLE IN NEWPORT ACCIDENT SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Howe, Mrs. Lennie Howe and Miss Clarice Shaw escaped without serious injury Sunday afternoon when Mr. Howe's car, in which they were riding, overturned after a rear tire blew out. The accident occurred about three miles west of Newport on Route 2, and the car went over a three foot embankment endwise before rolling over. Mr. Howe received only head and knee bruises, but the ladies were shaken up and suffered painful head and neck injuries, but no broken bones. Besides the tire, the car was not badly damaged, there being only a broken spring and side window.

NORWAY ELEVEN HERE SATURDAY

Saturday is Parents' Day at Gould Academy and the big event of the week end is the grid battle between Norway High and Gould. As usual this is one of the best games of the year and figures seem to prove it so again.

The visitors have a very impressive record with wins over South Paris 14-12 and a real drubbing to Kennett High of Conway, N. H., 37-7 last Saturday. The Academy Gridsters won an easy opener against Fryeburg Academy but went down to defeat at the hands of Bucksport last week. An inexperienced group of reserves and injuries have hampered the "Blacks and Gold" squad all the fall; but the team will be in there battling all the way on Saturday.

The game is called for 2 p. m. with John Fortunato as referee and Frank Gibson as umpire.

SMITH—DEMERITT

Miss Louise J. Demeritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Demeritt of Bethel became the bride of Glenwood Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lord A. Smith of Jefferson, N. H., Saturday evening, Rev. M. A. Gordon officiated, using the double ring service.

The ceremony was performed in the big rustic living room of the farm house in Ketchum which was formerly the Demeritt homestead, beneath an arch of autumn leaves with background of evergreens and autumn leaves. Autumn garden flowers completed the decorations and the room was lighted by candles and light from the fire, kindled in the huge fireplace.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Ernest Farrar of Randolph, N. H., sister of the bride, and the best man was Charles Demeritt of North Waterford, brother of the bride.

The bride wore white lace over white silk and carried a bouquet of bride's roses and maiden hair fern. Her traveling suit was soldier blue with matching accessories. The matron of honor wore blue lace over blue silk. Only the immediate families were present.

Refreshments were served following the ceremony including a wedding cake made by Mrs. Ernest Farrar. Mrs. Farrar was in charge of the guest book.

The couple left on a short trip after which they will reside at the home of Mrs. Smith's parents.

Miss Jane Chapin, student nurse at the C. M. G. Hospital, Lewiston was a guest of Miss Christy Thurston over the week end.

Registration Day Proclamation

STATE OF MAINE

Proclamation By The Governor

The Congress of the United States having declared that "it is imperative to increase and train the personnel of the armed forces of the United States"—thus providing for the common defense, it shall be the duty of every male citizen, and of every male alien, who, on the day or days fixed for the first and subsequent registrations, is between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-six, "to present himself for and submit to registration at such time or times, and place or places," as prescribed under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940.

In accordance with the provisions contained in the regulations for Selective Service, and embraced by Executive Order No. 8445, signed by The President September 23, 1940, I, Lewis O. Barrows, Governor of Maine, do designate and proclaim

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1940
(between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m.)

AS REGISTRATION DAY

and do enjoin upon all officials of the State of Maine and of its counties and municipalities a full co-operation in effecting registration as required under the Selective Service Act. In view of the personal sacrifice to be made by the men who are being registered for military service, it is deemed fitting that the registration be conducted by citizens, including the regular election officials, who volunteer their services as a contribution to the national defense. Accordingly, no compensation shall be paid for the services of the registrars, and in like manner will members of local selective service boards contribute their services.

Further, it is provided that every person subject to registration is required to familiarize himself with the rules and regulations governing registration and to comply therewith. If a registrant or person required to present himself for and submit to registration fails to perform any duty prescribed by the Selective Service Act, or directions given pursuant thereto, within the required time, he shall be liable to fine and imprisonment . . .

In the matter of absentees Chapter 244 of said Act, provides that any man subject to registration who is absent from his home or precinct on Registration Day shall be permitted, for his own convenience, to register at any place of registration, and he shall there be given a registration certificate.

Delayed registration has been provided for men distant from their homes attending training camps, schools, colleges; persons at sea and abroad, the sick at home or in hospitals, as well as those in institutions for the insane, jails, penitentiaries and reformatories. It is further provided that any man who for any reason fails to register on the day fixed may present himself before any local board which shall register him and, if he has a valid reason for having failed to register, shall issue him a registration certificate.

That all possible assistance be made available, I respectfully invite the Maine Department of the

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Garey and Ross I. Knapp were united in marriage at Mrs. Garey's home Saturday evening. Rev. M. A. Gordon officiated, using the single ring service. Mr. Knapp's daughter, Miss Ruby Knapp of Portland, and Mrs. Ray York were present.

American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Spanish War Veterans, as well as members of the State Bar Association, to volunteer their services to advise and aid registrants in the proper and prompt preparation of questionnaires.

Believing it most appropriate to the occasion, I call upon the citizens of Maine, organizations—civic, patriotic and fraternal—guardians of public buildings and of places of business in general, to fly the Stars and Stripes from homes, business institutions, schools and colleges, and further direct that the Flag be displayed from all State Buildings and properties under its supervision on Registration Day. Street displays available in some communities should be made a part of this display of our patriotism.

Acting under the authority vested in me by the President of the United States, I, as Governor of Maine, have caused to be established in all precincts of the State of Maine, suitable quarters for the registration of all male residents, or male aliens, between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-six, within the confines of our State, as well as those of other states who may be in the Maine registration area on the day appointed for registration. In all quarters set apart for registration the American Flag shall be prominently displayed.

Regulations prescribed under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, make it incumbent upon the Chief Executive to direct distribution of registration Cards and registration certificates, and such other printed material used in the registration of men, in all communities of the State; including those for all residents of National Parks and visitors present therein, registration to be conducted by the Director of the National Park Service; for all enrollees of the Civilian Conservation Corps, registration to be in charge of the Director of the C. C. C.

"Itation is given the purpose of Selective Service, "as an orderly, just and democratic method whereby the military manpower of the United States may be available for training and service in the land and naval forces of the United States, as provided by The Congress, with the least possible disruption of the social and economic life of the Nation."

To the end that the purposes of the Selective Service Act be carried into effect throughout the State of Maine, I urge employers in all sections of Maine, as well as government agencies, Federal State and Local to allow those under their charge sufficient time off from their labors in order that they may comply with the obligations imposed upon them under said Act.

In conclusion, I respectfully urge a unification of the forces of Maine citizens upon whom this master task of registration rests, in the hope that all assignments made by the Selective Service regulations, and the duties of subjects as enumerated by Presidential Proclamation, will be performed with all possible dispatch and fairness, to the credit of the State of Maine, and her citizens in general.

Given at the office of the Governor or at Augusta, and sealed with the Great Seal of the State of Maine, this second day of October, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty and of the Independence of the United States of America the One Hundred and Sixty-Fifth

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

A Non-Partisan Editorial Review of the Events of Each Week, Illustrated

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of this newspaper.

THE WAR:
Axis Pact

Germany, Italy and Japan agreed to a pact. It amounted to this: If Russia or the United States interfered in the Anglo-German war, or the Chino-Japanese war, by force of arms, all three of the axis partners would go to work as one. The Kremlin at Moscow did not like the pact. Neither did the state department at Washington.

One school of thought in America said they had known it was coming for a long time, and had been prepared for it. Another school of thought said: No. This school said that our meddling in European and East Asiatic affairs at the same time had forced Germany and Japan into one another's arms. These two schools of U. S. thought did not exactly like each other and Secretary Hull came in for some pretty severe criticism.

Divided?

The basic military principle, at all times, in all places, is this: Don't divide your forces, and don't fight on two fronts. The Germans lost the last war because of this basic principle, and in this war they have been careful to respect its potentialities. We do not yet have a two-ocean navy, and won't have for several years. What would become of England, if we were off chasing Japan? Some of the military critics said there had been rather inept diplomacy.

There was great talk of wooing Russia. Wooing Russia was poison to the conservative ruling class in Latin America and to some elements in the U. S. And yet, it seemed necessary to woo Russia, as the English had thought for a long time.

Meanwhile, the French had beaten the British navy in an action off Dakar, in West Africa. It raised a storm in England, and did not add to Churchill's prestige. There was talk of another British government purge, and the French Vichy regime gained prestige. Swarms of French aviators peppered British Gibraltar from the air, and the Japs moved increasingly into French Indo-China. Hull wisely embargoed scrapiron destined for Japan, and the general muddle grew apace.

SCRAPIRON:
Great Stuff (1)

What you can do with a ton of scrapiron, fresh from your favorite automobile graveyard, is truly astonishing. The Japanese knew that, and had a word for it. They will sadly miss their American scrap-iron, which the U. S. now has embargoed. Some critics said this measure should have been taken back in the red-hot summer of 1937 when the Japanese attacked North China and began the endless Chino-Japanese war.

U. S. ordnance officers declared you could make the following with an average ton of scrapiron:

One "75" field gun of the standard French or American type.

One carriage of a "75" gun.

No less than 12 death-squirting machine guns.

Nine 500-pound "demolition" bombs, a la London.

One 2,000 pound, 16-inch, battleship-piercing shell.

In short, what a devilish trade, as the missionaries could have told us over three years ago!

SOLID?

Maybe

The United States senate did a sensible thing. It finally proceeded to ratify the recent agreement made at Havana de Cuba, whereby America and the other 20 American republics made an out-and-out agreement on diplomatic fundamentals. It is pretty hard to get the 21 to agree about anything, but this time they did, the Argentine (as usual) dragging along a bit behind. Secretary Hull is not liked in the Argentine.

The agreement that our senators ratified specified this: That no non-American country can transfer territory in this hemisphere to any other non-American country. Hence, and thereby, the Germans cannot get hold of the Dutch or French West Indian colonies. That bit of news seemed to cheer everyone of the 21, including even the Mexicans, Argentines, and other Latins who do not cherish their kindly old Uncle Sam as perhaps they should.

CAMPAIGN:

Tidbits

There was a good deal of comment around New York, coming from (perhaps) catty Republican circles. It amounted to this. It hinted that the state department's fussing with Japan was intended to panic the American voters around election time. These same Republicans, and others, had been predicting an international crisis (of some sort or other) before the election, just in time to tilt the balance. They had said as much, months back. They reminded the American public that both the British and the Nazis had experienced such awful dodges, in the celebrated cases of the forged Zinoviev Letter (British) and the fake Reichstag fire (German).

NAMES

... in the news

Willkie said that Roosevelt had used his high office to destroy democracy, but Roosevelt said No; that no dictator allowed free elections. Neutrals raised a third point: That no dictator in history ever allowed himself to be called, publicly, a dictator. In short, if you can call Roosevelt a dictator and get away with it, then he isn't one.

Bruce Barton, the New York advertising king, now in the house of representatives, was nominated as a Republican senatorial candidate.

Stalin had nothing to say about the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis agreement. Everybody else had something to say about it. That, in itself, made Stalin a name in the news.

Billy Fluke, millionaire American who died for the royal air force, got an alabaster tablet in St. Paul's cathedral, London. He was a big banker's son, and captain of the Olympic boat team, twice over. They always said he was a nice guy.

Democrats did not seem particularly worried about this type of political bickering. Candidate Roosevelt's campaign moved along according to schedule, still out in front.

Willkie

Some of the Republican campaigners and party men were very outspoken along these lines. But Willkie's attack on Roosevelt, as a variety of Munich appeaser, seemed to go too far for many of the critics to stomach. That particular attack seemed to do Willkie more harm than good, and Wendell had to be soft-peddled by his own following. The British empire (aside from Ireland and India) were cheering for Roosevelt to a man. Reports from London showed F. D. R. to be better liked than the king, the queen, or Mr. Winston Churchill. Woodrow Wilson, it will be remembered, had some such brief experience of international popularity back around 1918 when British, French and Italian crowds loved and halo-ed him as a St. George who had slain the Teutondragon. Historical minded people remembered that it didn't last, once the 1919 peace conference had actually gotten to work.

Lieut. Col. Lewis B. Hershey (above) has had powers of the director of selective service conferred upon him by an executive order of President Roosevelt. His appointment is effective immediately and will continue pending the appointment of a regular director. 47 years old, Colonel Hershey is a veteran of the last war and has been preparing and studying conscription plans as his assignment in the regular army for the past several years.

CHEERFUL:

Charming

It was revealed, in Washington, that the United States army has been making a careful survey of the coffin-casket industry. This did not cheer the nervous public, nor did it charm them. In fact, some people were alarmed, and not without reason.

A U. S. army major answered the public with the following statement: "When you have an army, you have to figure it's going to fight some day. Fighting means casualties, and casualties call for caskets. That's all there is to it. Just a simple matter of being prepared with essentials. Caskets are like the rest of the gadgets we use." It was indeed a simple fact.

LONDON:

England

London, it was noted, is the veritable nerve-center of England. This is not true of Washington or Berlin or Moscow or Rome. It's true, however, that Paris is the nerve-center of France.

London City contains nearly 25 per cent of the total population of Great Britain. It contains more than 20 per cent of the British industrial workers. It contains about a quarter of all British industry, as well as the British financial, banking, and commercial structure.

London also contains most of the big British oil storage tanks. It contains the Wellington and Spitfire airplane factories, the houses of parliament, and Buckingham palace, as well as the bank of England. It contains a third of the British dockage, and about a third of all British imports come in through London.

In the east end of London, among the squalid slums, is a vast alien population. These people are Italian, Jewish, Lascar, Malay, Indian, shanty Irish, and none too patriotic. They are no fifth column—they are plentifully anti-Nazi. But they are not desirable people to have around in a time of siege. They are much more nervous than the real English, and much less stolid.

In Berlin

Berlin, too, has a vast foreign population. But it is less volatile than that of London. Most of Berlin's aliens are Slavic, and phlegmatic. The real British are calmer than the real Germans, and steadier, but the Berlin aliens can "take it" better than the east-end London aliens, according to war correspondents, neurologists, and social-minded critics.

It has been proven, by this time, that the British are not the world's best under aerial bombardment, though they are very good at it. The Spanish, Chinese, and Russians all exceed the Cockneys in fatalism and adaptability.

MEXICO CITY:

No Mean Town

Mexico City, which is located in a federal district like Washington, D. C., is a wonderful place, with a wonderful climate. It is high up in altitude, and you need blankets at night, and many of us wish we were there.

The population of Mexico City has sprouted like wildfire. Just announced—it's now up to 1,750,000 plus. That's a lot of people for a nation of only about 15,000,000. Rio de Janeiro, the capital of vast Brazil (bigger than the United States), is just a wee bit behind Mexico City. Buenos Aires, capital of the white man's Argentine republic, totals the whopping brand-new figure of 2,300,000 souls.

This means something. It means that Buenos Aires is now the biggest Latin city in the whole world. It means that Mexico City is second, Rio de Janeiro is third, and that Paris—that so-gay Parée—is way down in fourth place. After Paris, tag along Italy's Milan and Rome, Spain's Madrid and Barcelona and Canada's Montreal.

The three big German towns are Berlin, Vienna and Hamburg. The WOMEN

... in the news

A baby girl was born to Mrs. Fred Snite Jr., wife of the Chicago youth who has spent years in an "iron lung" while traveling around the world.

For the third successive year, the International League of Aviators names Jacqueline Cochran (Mrs. Floyd B. Odlum) the outstanding woman flier of the year.

Mrs. William Bankhead, widow of the late speaker of the house, refused to run for the seat long held by her husband. The offer came from the Alabama Democratic committee, which was as good as guaranteeing election.

King Carol, late of Rumania, has been married to Mme. Magda Lupescu since 1930, their friends are saying. Queen Mother Mary of England is said to have shared the secret since the wedding. Carol and Magda are reported to be in Portugal at present.

three big Anglo-Saxon towns are New York, London, and Sydney, in far Australia, plus Chicago, Glasgow and Philadelphia. Japanese Tokyo is now the world's third city.

WAR FIFTY:

What Price Glory?

One of the British Spitfire fighter planes had a defective motor, so it lagged behind its little mates in the fighting around the pestered London district. This is what the "lame-duck" Spitfire was able to do:

1. It shot down a big German bomber over London.
2. It set on fire another big German bomber.
3. It injured a small German fighter, and probably put it "out."
4. It made a safe landing—if a forced landing—in Essex.
5. The story probably was true, as stories go in wartime.

HITLER:

At War

Dr. Foster Kennedy is strongly anti-Nazi. Dr. Foster Kennedy is also one of New York city's leading neurologists. Dr. Foster Kennedy got interested in Adolf Hitler's first World war record.

The general impression was—that Hitler had been blinded, in 1918, by British poison gas. In his own book, Mein Kampf, Hitler says that he was wounded on the Somme in 1916, and blinded by gas on the Yser in 1918. At that time, Hitler was a sub-corporal and a message runner in a royal Bavarian reserve regiment. He had volunteered for this in 1914.

Dr. Kennedy, however, says that Hitler's medical war record was inspected in 1931 by a close friend of his—one of Europe's most distinguished medical men, with an inductive approach to things. The record showed that Hitler had had only a single hospital admission, and that was for "hysterical amblyopia"—that is, "blindness due to hysteria." Blindness due to hysteria means subconscious fear. Dr. Kennedy says his medical friend looked for the record again, in 1934, the year after Hitler had come to power. The record, by golly, had disappeared.

President in Power Holds Many Advantages Over His Opponents

Political Party in Office Receives the Most Publicity Because It 'Makes' the News; Opponents Are Merely 'Talking Politics.'

By CARTER FIELD
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
WASHINGTON.—This idea of his being too busy for politics—having to devote his every energy to the national preparedness program—is working out pretty well for President Roosevelt so far as publicity is concerned. This goes for the newspapers, for radio news and comment, and for the newsreels. It is perhaps better for the Roosevelt candidacy in the newsreels, proportionately, than in other mediums of reaching the public.

All over the country opponents of the third term, whether Democrats or Republicans, are complaining that when they go to the movies they are treated to too high a percentage of Roosevelt propaganda which they have no way of avoiding unless they want to miss the rest of the show. They complain further that the New Dealers in the audience get plenty of chance to applaud their hero, but very frequently there is no showing of Wendell Willkie at all.

Presidents Have Many Advantages

Apparently this is just one of the little perquisites which modern invention has given to the man who happens to be in the White House. Obviously it might be true no matter whether he were a Democrat or a Republican, a man seeking merely his second term or a man seeking his fifth.

Whatever the President of the United States does is news. There is no getting away from that. If he dedicates a new dam, or park, or if he talks to a group of friends who visit him at his country estate, it is still news. But when Wendell Willkie talks, he NOT being the President but merely a candidate for the office, that—to the minds of the gentlemen who decide what goes out in the newsreels—is just politics.

This is manifestly unfair, but it is difficult to see what could possibly be done about it. Mere existence of the situation might be a good point against a third term, though it would exist if the race were merely for a second term.

It is interesting to note that every modern development with respect to publicity has increased the advantage of the man in office as against the man trying to get in. In the good old days the sitting President was sometimes thought to be at a slight disadvantage. It was considered undignified for him to go barnstorming, and that was the only way he could reach the people.

Man in Office Given Publicity

Press conferences, in which the President, twice a week, pours out through the Washington newspaper correspondents just what he wants the country to read that afternoon or next morning, were unknown. Virtually no President until Theodore Roosevelt had the gift of publicity. Presidents did not have press agents, either on the public or national committee pay rolls.

Germany, England, Now Canada, in U. S. Army

theless their attitude will be better for they have joined the ranks on a decision made by themselves, and have not been actually "forced" or drafted.

Will over-confidence defeat the Democratic ticket in November? That is a question being rather freely tossed around the nation's capital city by political observers these days. Administration leaders here seem to be very confident that the race is as good as over; that their man is "in."

But many experienced observers, while admitting that the President has shown real strength in the various polls, are inclined to point out that election day is still some time away.

Major factors that might give the Democrats a real jolt, say these observers, are (1) the third term issue and (2) the "huge independent vote." They point out that the first factor—the third term issue—hasn't been given a real airing by the Republicans. While the President has been the object of numerous potshots for his precedent-making decision, it hasn't been the shining light in the Willkie "crusade" that many people were sure it would be. It may be that Republicans are saving this vital and highly inflammable issue for their final drive down the stretch.

The second factor—the independent vote—is equally important in forecasting the results of the election. Neither the Republicans nor the Democrats can "claim" it until the ballots are counted. Roosevelt backers know it was this vote which elected the President in 1936 and feel sure he will hold it again in November. Republicans, of course, feel that Wendell Willkie has captured the imaginations of this great bloc of independents and when the imagination is captured, they argue, the ballot is so marked.

Small towns throughout the nation have an important stake in current defense plans, judging from the information issuing from the offices of the Civil Aeronautics authority here in Washington.

This is the story: It is quite generally conceded that one of the major weaknesses in the nation's defense system is the lack of airports equipped to handle large bombers. And in any plan to strengthen this nation's defense these airports must in some way be provided. The CAA is attempting to work out a program whereby this can be brought about and at the same time commercial aviation can be given a real boost.

This would mean a network of airports reaching to every section of the nation, all able to handle the largest of U. S. army bombers. Thus these same airports could also accommodate the large commercial airliners. Commercial aviation would be given its needed impetus in many now "remote" sections, and the defense of the nation would be strengthened.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SAYING that the first feature-length film made by the March of Time is important is like saying that the history of our country is important. "The Ramparts We Watch" is living history; the nonprofessionals who appear in the story that is played out against the background of the stirring events of 1914-18 are just people like all of us, thinking and talking as we do now.

Since the film was released in a limited number of cities a new ending has been given it, one so dramatic that the picture is made doubly effective. Despite protests of the German embassy, sections of the Nazi propaganda film, "Feuertaufe," ("Baptism of Fire") have been incorporated at the end of the picture.

In this German film, a Stuka bomber dives on a railroad station—and you seem to be in it. Warsaw is razed, the German war machine moves relentlessly. Your daily newspaper's headlines come alive for you.

Jeanette Nolan was the victim of one of the worst things that can happen to a radio actress, the other day. Of course, the worst thing is missing a broadcast. The next worst is an attack of hiccoughs.

It happened to Jeanette just before she was to broadcast on the Court of Missing Heirs. She drank water. She held her breath. People beat her on the back. And still she hiccupped.

Finally Director John Loveton had an inspiration. "Just heard that John didn't show up for rehearsals at 'Meet Mr. Meek,'" he remarked casually. By John he meant John McIntyre, Jeanette's husband. She was so frightened that she forgot her hiccoughs.

The American Federation of Labor had decided tentatively to produce a motion picture based on the life of the great labor leader, Samuel Gompers, who for many years headed the A. F. of L. Paul Muni is slated for the leading role. It is said that Mr. Muni will be paid $25,000 for his work. The picture will in all probability be made in New York city.

Most of the big stars of Hollywood are married or past 35, but among those who will qualify for the draft are John Howard, Orson Welles, Broderick Crawford, James Stewart, Lew Ayres, John Carroll, William Holden, Bob Preston, Eddie Albert, Jeffrey Lynn and Dennis O'Keefe. Wayne Morris still doesn't know whether he's married or divorced.

ODDS AND ENDS

1. The Record Players, a company of actors headed by Wendell Holmes (of radio's "Big Sister" and "Myrt and Marge"), is being formed to record the great plays of the ages and distribute them to schools and cultural groups throughout the nation. At first a limited number of recorded plays in album form will be distributed free. Holmes' idea is to make the world's famous plays available to every home or group having a phonograph, and to open a new field for actors and actresses.

2. Paulette Goddard is resting up after "Second Chorus."

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Removing Paint.

QUESTION: The plaster ceiling in our kitchen was papered several times, and then painted twice. Now the paint is coming off in great pieces. We want to take it all off and repaint. How can we do it? Why is the paint peeling off?

Answer: Walls and ceiling of a kitchen become covered with a fine film of grease. This may not be visible, but it is there, and if it is not removed before painting, the paint will not stick. This may be the reason why your paint has peeled. The paint is evidently loose, and you should be able to scrape it off with a broad putty knife. A solution of three pounds of washing soda to the gallon of water will soften the paint after remaining on for a few minutes, but you should be careful not to get this on the woodwork or any other paint that is not to be removed. Follow by ample rinsing with clear water, and allow the wall to dry thoroughly before repainting.

Wet or Dry Return.

Question: In a one-pipe steam system with an oil burner, is there any advantage in having a wet return line? My neighbor has a wet return, while mine is identical except that I have a dry return.

Answer: A wet return is filled with water for its entire length to the level of the water in the boiler. Water standing in the return may be chilled before it reaches the boiler, which will reduce the temperature of the boiler water. A leak in a wet return under the floor is difficult to locate and to repair. A dry return is under inspection at all times. Water in it returns to the boiler with but little drop in temperature. The one advantage of the wet return is that it gives the boiler a greater volume of water, which would be an advantage in case of a steam leak. My own preference is for the dry return.

Sticking Leather.

Question: Leather covered chairs stick to and stain light clothing in damp weather. I have used varnish remover, saddle soap and wax, but nothing seems to help. Would you recommend varnish?

Answer: Varnish remover should not be used on leather, for the solvents would remove the natural oils. You may have caused permanent damage. Sticking of leather is usually due to the use of an unsuitable leather dressing; furniture polish, for instance. Apply pure neatsfoot oil to the leather; let it soak in, and then wipe dry. After a few days for drying, wash with thick suds of castile soap. After the leather is dry, rub with beaten white of egg. If this does not do the trick, inquire at a leather store.

Apartment Roof.

Question: The roof of an apartment house, which I manage, has a three-ply tar paper and two-ply roll roofing; put on seven years ago. The job was done in November. The roof is full of blisters, many of them extending down to the first layer of tar paper. I would like to do this roof over and would appreciate your information on how to go about putting on a new roof.

Answer: Laying a flat roof in very cold weather will very often cause the roofing to blister and separate because of the difficulty in spreading the tar or asphalt. Before laying the new roof, get in touch with any one of the well-known makers of roofing and get their recommendations on the best way to lay it.

Dark Shingle Stain.

Question: I want to stain the new wood shingles on my roof midnight blue or almost black. I cannot find such a stain. How can I make it?

Answer: You can make that stain by adding color-ground-in-oil to linseed oil. The proportions are four parts of linseed oil with one part Japan drier. Thin the color with linseed oil to the consistency of paint, and add to the mixed oil and drier to the tone that you want. Experimenting will be necessary. (© Roger B. Whitman—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON WEEK

WASHINGTON.—Reports coming in from all parts of the country indicate the strong possibility that the first quota of 400,000 men to be mustered into the army by January 1, 1941, will be filled by volunteers, without resort to the nationwide draft.

This comes as a surprise to some of the draft officials, but old-timers point to the huge enlistment figures prior to the enactment of conscription during the World war.

Until October 16, prospective doughboys must enlist under regular army regulations—that is, for a three-year period. After that date, under terms of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription act, the army will accept volunteers for the one-year enlistment period. Many applications for one-year enlistment have already been received and have been deferred until after "registration day." Scattered figures give rise to the opinion that the enlistments after October 16 will show a rate of 62 men to each conscription district, which would fill the required quota.

Official sources have not commented on the reasons for this trend but it appears to be a healthy situation. Men who join the army of their own free will should make better soldiers. While it is argued by some commentators that many of the young men planning to enlist are doing so merely to avoid waiting two or three years before their number turns up in the draft, never-

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual.
National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

What history may prove to be one of the most important Presidential campaigns in decades is at last in high gear. The period of peace and quiet which followed the nominations seem to be definitely over.

During that period, there can be no question but what the Willkie campaign suffered a slight let-down even his friends admit it, even as his opponents exult in it.
But only the politically inexperienced could believe that let-down was necessarily of any particular significance. Mr. Willkie was swept into the Republican nomination on the crest of a wave of almost unprecedented enthusiasm, similar to that which gave Mr. Roosevelt the Democratic nomination eight years ago. No one experienced in politics believes that enthusiasm could have been maintained undimmed from nomination day to election day.
Willkie strategists deliberately planned the let down, knowing that it had to come some time, and that the earlier it came the better off his candidacy would be. History is studded with dismal examples of candidates who brought their campaigns to maximum pitch too long before November—and, as a result, seemed to the voters as stale as yesterday's beer by election time.

On top of that, the Willkie campaign called for super-careful planning. Ordinary issues are of little moment today, with the national attention focused on war in Europe and defense at home. Mr. Willkie is not an "aggressor." He endorses many New Deal policies in principle, even as he denounces many New Deal methods. And so, almost inevitably, it looks as if this campaign will focus down to two issues—one tangible, the other more or less intangible but of immense potential importance.

The tangible issue is that of administration. Willkie backers believe that he could get more for each defense dollar than could the present White House group. They believe he could steer a course which would be fairer to all the diverse interests in this country today—worker and capitalist, farmer and manufacturer, little businessman, reliever, etc. And only the blindest supporters of the New Deal fail to see that it has made many grave mistakes in the administrative field, even as it has made great advances in bringing before the people problems which must eventually be solved.

The intangible issue is that of the third term—one man's indispensability. Mr. Willkie has been hitting that issue hard, and some of the experts believe that it may turn out to be the decisive issue of the campaign. No man, says Mr. Willkie, is vital to the country—and once the idea gets around that one man is indispensable, it will be just a matter of time before dictatorship follows. To Mr.
Willkie, there is no personal fight in this—he doesn't charge the President with dictatorial ambitions. He simply points out that once the precedent is established —or, putting it another way, the old anti-third-term precedent is demolished—we will have, in principle, accepted a government of men as against a government of laws.

That was the theme which dominated Mr. Willkie's Coffeyville address, opening gun of his campaign.

And it has dominated his other prepared addresses made since, even as it has dominated the little two-minute off-hand talks he has made in dozens of towns.

Mr. Roosevelt bases his candidacy on his record—on what he regards as great New Deal attainments. His answer to the third term argument is that there can be no dictatorship here so long as the people possess the ballot. His recent speeches have been moderate in tone, and have been generally well received. They are not driving speeches—apparently he thinks there would be no point in his making a campaign tour, inasmuch as he and what he stands for are so well known to the country. On one point, all are agreed—the President was never in finer form when it comes to his radio presence and delivery.

Who will win? One of the weekly picture magazines recently asked a group of well known Washington correspondents and commentators that question, and all but a few hedged. Too much can happen between now and November, they said, to make a safe prediction possible. They were about evenly divided in giving the edge at present to either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Willkie.

Latest published polls give the President a substantial lead. But these polls were taken during the Willkie let-down period and so may not mean so much. From now on, the polls should be more significant and accurate. Hope of Willkie backers is that his rating will come slowly and steadily up, reaching top just before November 5.

Some are wondering just how accurate the modern "scientific sampling" polls will prove to be if the election is close. These polls didn't come into existence until the thirties, and have covered two presidential contests where the victor won with record-breaking ease.
In a really nip-and-tuck election, where the final decision turned on a few hundred thousand votes in two or three key states, it is a question whether the polls would make the grade or not.

The Girl Scout troop met Friday afternoon with two leaders and 23 girls present. An outdoor business meeting was held at which it was decided to have a "hot dog roast" the following Friday.

GOULD ACADEMY . . .

PARENTS' DAY OCTOBER 12

There will be a football game at two o'clock between Norway High school and Gould Academy. Immediately following the football game at four o'clock, there will be a reception in the Marion True Gearing Students' Home, at which time Principal and Mrs. Ireland,
Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Bailey, Miss
Bailey, and the new teachers,
Miss Elizabeth Mutch, Miss Harri-
ett Durkee, Miss Ann Griggs, Howard Chivers, and Edmond Vachon, will be in line to greet parents and friends.

Ushers for the reception will be Miss Dorothy Hanscom, chairman, and assistants Miss Margaret Lundy, Miss Margaret Stevens, Robert Rathbone, and Clayton Fossett.
Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Ellery Park and Mrs. Frank Hanscom. Assisting at the table will be Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Myers, Mrs. Vachon, and Mrs. Fossett.

During the reception there will be a dance in the gymnasium for the pupils under the direction of Mr. Bowhay and Miss Soule. About five o'clock there will be an intermission in the dancing, and there will be five musical numbers presented by the Gould Academy musical organization, under the direction of Miss Ann Griggs. There will be several boys and girls as guides and ushers to take friends and parents through the various buildings.

The guides for Hanscom Hall are Muriel Hall, Barbara Luxton, Herbertina Norton, and Helen Wil-lamson.

The guides for Students' Home are June Chipman, Virginia Lindquist, Marian Wight, Priscilla Abbott, Marjorie Alvord, and Margaret Stevens.

During the last two weeks, a large number of standardized tests have been given to the pupils of Gould Academy, in order to determine their standing in relation to boys and girls of similar ages and grades in the rest of the country.

Reading tests have been given to all the Freshmen in order to determine reading difficulties.
Tests cover rate of reading and rate of comprehension of what is read.
Also pupils are tested to find their understanding of poetry and the meaning of words in four fields of reading, namely, Social Sciences, Science, Mathematics, and English.
They were also tested to pick out the central idea in a sentence, and paragraph, and how to locate information from outside sources.
It is the purpose of these tests to adjust our reading classes to correct or improve the difficulties we find. In all the classes, Otis Quick Scoring Mental Ability tests have been administered so that we may determine a teacher's difficulty or a difficulty on the part of the pupil that is leading to failure or slow development.

During the week the principal has been receiving reports from the teachers on pupils who seem to be having difficulty with their courses, together with a statement explaining the reason for the difficulty as far as the teacher is able to determine from class room observation. Reports on these pupils will be made to the parents.

We Call It Romance

IT'S JUST a can of soup. But during a long lifetime, the man who made it found some way to advertise it. At first, just a sign over his little soup kitchen, a few newspaper ads, a few billboards. But as the advertising grew, so did the business.

Now the business employs thousands of workers, helps to support tens of thousands of retail clerks and transportation men, and gives the housewife a better, cheaper soup than she could prepare at home.

Back of every heavily advertised article is a romantic story of this kind—the kind of romance that built America.

"Life was simple then, maybe," Gay said. "You—"

"Fiddlesticks!" Abigail Houghton tossed her head. "It's simple enough to get married. And one male Houghton is not much different from another, I guess. They've all been as proud as Lucifer and as stubborn as mules. Don't you let that fret you. When they love you, they love you for life and that's not a bad fault in a husband. It's talking that complicates things. That, and too much considering other people. I've got the seed-pearl necklace I promised John for his bride sewed into my feather bed. It won't take long to rip out the stitches."

"You're a darling," Gay bent impulsively and kissed the russet cheek as soft as moth wing beneath her lips. "John will bring me. I'll come."

The old lady went with them to the door opening into the tiny hall.

"Mind you shut the door tight, Debby," she called after them.

"Good-by, Gabriella."

"Good-by," Gay turned to smile at John's grandmother. The quizzical expression still narrowed Abigail Houghton's eyes, but her smile was steadfast and encouraging. Debby opened the outer door.

They went down steps and along a shoveled path to a gate in the pocket fence. The harbor lay before them, touched with the last reflection of the sunset. Why was it? Gay thought. A moment came that you knew you would always remember. That—the dove-gray house behind them muffled with snow, the harbor below, stippled with fading pink and gold. Nothing had happened. Why did her heart ache and catch tears along beneath her eyelids? Why?

"Grown in a darling, isn't she?" Debby asked on the gate checked behind them with a frosty map and they walked, arms linked, along the cleared pavement between shoveled banks of snow.

"Yes," Gay replied. The ache in her throat was still there. She wanted John desperately, urgently, to be walking here beside her. His grandmother was right. They talked too much, she and John. It was dangerous to hurt each other with words. A lovely thing was spoiled if it was only a little marred. When he came tonight—

"You aren't going tomorrow, are you, Gay?" Debby asked, after a moment.

"I think so. Yes."

"Well, I can't blame you, I suppose," Debby's voice was deplorable. "It's dead enough here, goodness knows. I'll miss you, though, terribly."

"Well, you?" Gay asked, drawn from interrogation by the sincerity in the lovely young voice. "Why, especially, except to be polite?"

"Because I like to look at you. You're so beautiful. And I can talk to you. I can't to anybody else. Mother or Sarah, and the girls I know are pretty small. I am different," she gave an embarrassed laugh. "I guess all this sounds pretty silly to you."

"No, it doesn't. How old are you, Debby?"

"Eighteen last month."

"How would you like to go back to New York with me?"

Debby stopped, checking Gay's progress, too, looked at Gay, speechless, her dark eyes wide and shining.

"Why not?" It had been an impulsive suggestion. But why not? She was an attractive youngster. It would be fun to take her to New York. "Why not?" Gay repeated.

Debby exhaled her breath in a sharp explosion. "Gosh!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

"Would you like to go, Debby?"

"Would I?"

"Come along," Gay laughed and tugged at her arm. "We're blocking traffic and probably getting frost-bitten ears. There are your courses," she went on considering as they resumed progress again. "But you could go to a good business school or have a tutor. I'd like to have you. My mother and step-father are away a great deal, but the apartment is always there."

"Do you know what this means to me?" Debby asked seriously. "I've never been further than Boston in my life."

"I can imagine. Your eyes are popping out of your head. Do you think—Will your mother let you? Would she object?"

"She's got to let me," Debby said passionately. "Nothing as important as this has ever happened to me. Come on!" Clinging to Gay's arm, pulling her forward, Debby took a series of skipping steps along the sidewalk. "Let's hurry home and ask her!"

Dusk was falling when they came in sight of the Houghton house. A car was parked at the curb.

"That's a taxi from the station," Debby said, checking momentarily a stream of breathlessly eager questions, comments, observations. "Who in heck—? Oh!" she added as a slight man in a heavy overcoat with a briefcase under his arm emerged from the car. "It's Mr. Sewall. He's writing a book about clipper ships and comes out from Portland to see the papers and logs and diaries Mother has. Oh, dear! He'll stay for supper and heaven knows how long afterward and I won't have a chance to talk to Mother."

"Not for all the rice in China. Not for all the bulls in Spain..."

Debby's voice, rising in contralto cadences above her improvised accompaniment on the yellowed keys of the square piano, brought to Gay's mind the musical comedy for which the song Debby sang had been written. She, Gay, had gone with Tony Merrill. Todd, in the same party, had been very devoted to Julie Leflange, that evening. Ellen's roommate at boarding school and home with her for the Christmas holidays. It was that evening she had decided, in her own mind, that she would marry Todd. She remembered, not emotionally but quite accurately, the pluck it had given her heart to watch Todd fall under the spell of Julie's soft dark eyes and Charleston accent, and the relief she'd felt when Todd, later, had confessed to her that the accent had palled and the magnolia blossom grown cloyingly sweet. Funny the things you remembered...

"Not for all the beans in Boston. Not for all the grapes in France..."

Gay leaning on the shelf of the piano, her elbows braced on mahogany, cracked in a net-work of tiny lines, gave her attention to Debby. The child was radiant tonight. The flush in her cheeks matched the deep dark red of the velvet dress she wore.

The song came to an end.

"Can I sing, Gay?" Debby asked, looking up with anxiety in the dark depths of her shining eyes. "I don't believe you even listened." Disappointment clouded her face. "You kept looking at the clock and listening for John."

"I did listen Debby," Gay assured her. "I think your voice is very appealing."

"But can I sing?" Debby persisted.

"We're not sure whether she has a voice," Sarah said from the opposite side of the keyboard, "or whether she does it by black magic. A member of the Metropolitan Opera Company spent part of last summer out at the hotel and Debby managed to scrape an acquaintance."

They walked, arms linked, along the cleared pavement.

"Did you sing for her?" Gay asked.

"Yes—"

"What was her opinion?"

"She said Debby hadn't voice enough for opera," Sarah said, "and that no amount of musical education would eliminate the huskiness. It's something about the formation of her vocal cords."

"I don't care," Debby ran a rippling chord. "I don't want to sing in opera. I don't want the husky tones trained out of my voice."

"What do you want?" The patience in Sarah's gentle voice intimidated to Gay that the question had been asked of Debby many times before.

"You know. I've told you. I want to sing popular songs. On the radio or in a club. Do you think I could, Gay?"

"Maybe—I don't know," Gay added, seeing Debby's face brighten, not wanting to raise false hopes. "I have a friend who sings in a supper club."

Sarah's eyes, sherry-colored like her grandmother's but with less vivacity of expression, widened in surprise not unmixed with shock. Gay thought, Debby gave a bounce on the piano bench.

"Oh, have you?" she cried. "Will

I—" She broke off and ran a series of noisy chords.

"It's personality rather than voice which puts Enid across," Gay went on, realizing that Debby had not spoken to Sarah of the possible visit in New York. "That and the fact smart club managers are featuring debutantes this season. Debby has personality—"

"Rather too much at times," Sarah sighed, then smiled. "There'll be no question of anything of the sort for some time, anyway," she added. "Debby is too young to make independent plans."

"I'm eighteen!" Debby flashed an antagonistic glance at her sister. But her mood was too joyous to permit her to bear a grudge. She played a few preliminary chords, then sang again. The sultry negroid minors of "The St. Louis Blues" moaned incongruously in the high-ceilinged New England room, from the old square piano where another Deborah Houghton had sat at twilight playing gentler tunes, her thoughts with her husband at sea.

Through Debby's singing, she heard a door open and glanced up expectantly, hoping that John had come. His mother entered the room. Debby's voice was silenced. Her hands dropped from the keyboard into her lap.

"John hasn't come yet?" Ann Houghton asked with a glance at Gay.

"Not yet, Mrs. Houghton."

"I hope nothing has happened." Her brow cleared. "Mr. Sewall asked me to say good-night to you. He had only just time enough to make the train. Debby seems to have amused you adequately."

"Oh, very much," Gay said quickly. "She sings remarkably well."

"It's an agreeable accomplishment, though I can't always recommend her choice of songs." John's mother smiled and went to sit in the wing-chair beside the hearth. Her hands reached instinctively toward the knitting bag on the arm of the chair. Debby had been correct in her prediction, Gay thought. Ann Houghton looked subtly flattered and pleased. There was a faint color in her cheeks. The dress of knitted silk she wore, dull amber in shade, was becoming. "Mr. Sewall was delighted with the material I gave him," she went on. "I let him take your great-grandfather's diary. If anything happens to it—"

"I should imagine that Mr. Sewall is trustworthy," Sarah said.

"Of course, but with things that could not be replaced—" She took the length of knitting from the bag and her needles flashed in the fire-light.

"Mother—" Debby rose from the piano bench, stood, her hands nervously clasped, irresolutely.

"Yes, Debby?" Ann Houghton raised her eyes.

"Mother!" Debby plunged across the room to the arm of her mother's chair.

"What is so important? Careful, dear. You'll make me drop a stitch."

"Mother!" Debby burst out in a breathless jumble of words. "Mother, Gay has invited me to go back to New York with her. May I please? I want to awfully."

Ann Houghton's faint smile faded. Her eyes turned to Gay who came forward across the room.

"I'd like to take her with me, Mrs. Houghton," she said.

"That's impossible. No, dear. It's very kind of Gay to suggest it, but it's quite impossible."

"Why is it?" Debby's color deepened. Gay saw her hands knot into fists as John's hands did when his fighting instinct was aroused.

"Well, there are your courses for one thing," Ann Houghton said evenly. "You were very eager to take them. You can't very well stop—"

"But Mother," Debby interrupted. "Gay says I can go to a business school or have a tutor."

"We couldn't afford that, Debby."

"But I should like to do it for—"

Gay began, then stopped short, checked by the expression which had settled over Ann Houghton's face.

"No, my dear," she said, still evenly, holding her off. Gay thought, by the reasonable friendliness of her tone. "That's very generous of you, but I think Debby is better off at home."

"But Mother, why?"

"We needn't go into that, Debby."

"Yes, we will!" Debby slipped off the arm of her mother's chair, stood with her hands clenched into fists, her head defiantly lifted. "It's because you're afraid to let one of us get out of your sight for fear we'll have an idea you didn't put into our heads."

"Debby!" Sarah cried in soft protest.

"It's true. You know it is. You want to do everything for us so that people will say what a wonderful Mother you are. You are. You have been, but I want to go somewhere and see something. Oh Mother, I am sorry!" Debby dropped down on the arm of the chair again. "But can't you see—"

"I see that my judgment is correct," Ann Houghton's eyes remained fixed upon the needles. "You are far too emotional to be trusted away from home."

"I'm not. I'm not really. It's only you who makes me that way. Gay wants me to go with her. Oh Mother, can't I? I never wanted anything so much."

"You're acting like a child, Deborah." Color burned deeper in Ann Houghton's cheeks. Her voice continued to pronounce words evenly with maintained control but Gay saw that her hands clasped over the knitting in her lap trembled. "I thought you had outgrown tantrums. You're being inconsiderate as well as unpardonably rude. This can't be very pleasant for Gay."

"Oh, I guess Gay knows. I guess she's seen. You know there's no reason, Mother, except that you're afraid, except that you disapprove—"

"Debby, hush! Come with me!" Sarah crossed the room, laid her hand on her sister's arm. Her face was white. Her eyes, wide and startled, met Gay's in fleeting apology, then turned away. "You don't know what you're saying."

"I do know!" Debby wrenched away from Sarah's hand. She stood facing her mother, frightened but defiant. "This is why I wouldn't go to college. I wouldn't let you make sacrifices to send me. You wanted to so that you could keep me tied here, grateful to you, not able to do anything that I wanted. You did that with Sarah and John. Sarah wanted to go abroad with Mrs. Trumbull. You knew she did and that it would have been wonderful for her. But she had to teach here in the high school to repay you for the sacrifices you'd made. You don't want John—"

"Deborah, go to your room. When John comes, I'll ask him to give you a sedative. You're ill. You aren't yourself."

"I am myself!" Debby's voice rose hysterically. "I've been wanting to tell you—Defiance suddenly crumpled. Debby's head drooped. Her lips quivered forlornly, like a child's. "Oh, what's the use." She gave a strangled sob and turned toward the door.

Women Flying Students Learn Easier Than Men

A blue-eyed slip of a girl, who teaches flying to six-foot engineers at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., believes it's safer to teach women students.

"They are more willing to do as they are told," according to Miss Barbara Kibbee, 25-year-old, 115-pound Civil Aeronautics authority flight instructor.

Despite their fear of the air, Miss Kibbee said, average women "know they know nothing about flying, or mechanics, or engineering or physics," and are consequently easy to teach.

"On the other hand," she continued, "I find that some men think they know how things should be done and sometimes are not as ready to follow instructions. This is particularly true of middle-aged men, who have been successful in business and who as executives have become accustomed to giving rather than taking orders."

Miss Kibbee, one of the few women flight instructors in the country, was already a licensed commercial pilot and instructor before her appointment to Rensselaer's pilot training program.

Well Done

The best thing is to do well, what one is doing at the moment.—Pittacus.

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of their value. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good, common-sense treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If these people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot pass on the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the kidneys suffer when the blood is not kept clean.

Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Dressier Afternoon Costumes in Vogue

We must dress up afternoons according to fashion's latest dictates. The revival of dressier afternoon costumes is noted in the gowns and blouses that take on glitter, in black dresses that are jet embroidered and the new half-head trimmings add a more formal tone to otherwise simple frocks.

New Black Dress Uses Two Fabrics

Black wool or crepe are being made up with a contrast material, either velvet or satin or lame. Many late soft dressmaker type suits use satin for the blouse with a satin aproned cloth for the bolero. Yokes of satin are introduced in crepe dresses and often sleeves in cloth frocks are of contrasting material.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

FARMER BROWN'S BOY DISCOVERS THE THIEF

OLD GRANNY FOX trotted back to the Green Forest where Reddy Fox was waiting for her, and all the way there she chuckled to herself. She had led Bowser the Hound straight to the home of Old Man Coyote in the far corner of the Green Meadows, and Bowser had called his master, Farmer Brown's Boy, over there.

"Now I guess he'll know who has been stealing his chickens and will stop hunting Reddy and me," muttered Granny. "I'm even with Old

"Hello! Here's a Fox Den!"

Man Coyote at last, and I guess he won't bother us again very soon."

Perhaps Granny wouldn't have had such a comfortable feeling if she could have heard Farmer Brown's Boy exclaim as he came up to where Bowser the Hound was frantically trying to dig open the house of Old Man Coyote. "Hello! Here's a fox den! It must be that those foxes have moved from up near the edge of the Green Forest, and I hadn't once suspected it. Pretty clever of them, I call it. No one would ever think of looking over it without seeing it. Hal there are some chicken bones! We've got to put a stop to this, Mr. Fox or Mrs. Fox, whichever you are!"

But presently as he looked about more closely Farmer Brown's Boy began to be in doubt, and there was a puzzled look on his face. "If a fox made that it is the biggest fox I ever heard of," he muttered as he stared down at a footprint. "He must be the king of all the foxes."

Now Farmer Brown's Boy has learned one thing that a great many people never do learn, and which is most important. It is this: Never make up your mind that a thing is or isn't so until you have thoroughly looked into it. So while at first he had taken that track for the footprint of a very large fox he was not absolutely sure. The more he looked at it the less sure he was. "Looks almost like the footprint of a small dog," said he, "and it isn't exactly like that either. Now I wonder—" He paused and looked very hard at the footprint. Then he hunted until he found another and near it a brownish gray hair. "My gracious!" he exclaimed, "I do believe that I have found the home of that prairie wolf I have heard howling! I've never seen him, but I know his voice, and for a long time I've been sure that there is one somewhere on the Green Meadows or in the Green Forest. This certainly is his track, and he is the one who has been taking my ducks and chickens! Good Old Bowser, to bring me straight to his home!"

"It's all right, Bowser, old fellow," continued Farmer Brown's Boy. "It's all right. He's safe enough in there just now. We can't get him out, but we know just where he lives and he is as good as caught this very minute. We'll set some traps around here, and then I guess Old Man Coyote will wish that he had left our ducks and chickens alone. I'm glad that it wasn't Reddy Fox, after all. He is such a handsome chap that I would much rather see him running around than to shoot or trap him. But this fellow isn't so handsome, and we'll soon make short work of him. You keep watch, Bowser, while I go back to the house and get some traps. He's eaten his last chicken."

All of which goes to show how little Farmer Brown's Boy knew about Old Man Coyote.

Smart Velveteen

A hue and cry for velveteen has gone up from the four corners of fashionland. Jackets of copper-penny brown are ever so good-looking worn with plaid or monotone skirts. Very new too, is the skirt of velveteen to be worn with versatile basques, evening sweaters and blouses. Dresses of velveteen are making the big "hit" of the season. A very youthful model is the jumper dress pictured. It is of elephant gray velveteen. Note the jumper effect which also suggests the new pinafore styling with straps over the shoulders, each of which is ruffled up one side with velveteen.

Masters of Mankind

Nature has placed mankind under the government of two sovereign masters, pain and pleasure. It is for them to point out what we ought to do, as well as to determine what we shall do. On the one hand, the standard of right and wrong; on the other, the chain of causes and effects, are fastened to their throne.—Bentham.

Household News

By Eleanor Howe

Three cheers! It's fall again! Now is the time to perk up your home a bit, to scan through Dame Fashion's news notes, and to dress up your table a bit with new and old-time favorites.

As each season comes we always heed its call by planning foods suitable for serving at that particular time of the year. We try to rush spring by setting forth very crisp, cool, and fresh vegetable salads. Throughout the summer, when appetites wane, cooling beverages and light foods are most popular.

But with cooler weather just around the corner, appetites pick up, and the family is more than ready to discard their favorite lighter meals for something more substantial that will provide new energy for school and fall activities.

Apple Pie.

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup boiling water
1 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
4 to 5 tart apples (peeled and sliced)
1/2 cup sugar
Dash cinnamon or nutmeg.

Place shortening in a warm bowl, pour boiling water over it and cream thoroughly with a fork. Place flour, salt and baking powder in flour sieve and sift gradually into the creamed shortening and water mixture. Mix thoroughly. Make up into a dough ball and chill.

To make apple pie, divide pastry, roll out and line pie plate with first half. Peel and slice the apples, arrange in alternate layers with sugar and cinnamon, or nutmeg. Top with pastry and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 minutes; then reduce oven heat to 350 degrees and bake approximately 35 minutes longer. Serve warm with a wedge of cheese.

Date Butterscotch Pudding.

2 cups brown sugar (light)
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
1 egg
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup dates (chopped)

Combine brown sugar, cornstarch, salt, and cold water. Add boiling water and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from range and pour over slightly beaten egg. Cook about a minute longer. Add butter and dates. Pour into sherbet glasses and chill before serving. Serve plain or garnished with whipped cream.

Stuffed Ham Steak.

(Serves 5-6)
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup seeded raisins (chopped)
1/2 cup walnut meats (broken)
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 cup butter (melted)
2 large slices smoked ham (1/2 inch thick)

Whole cloves
Combine the crumbs, raisins, nuts, sugar, mustard, and butter to form a dressing. Place one slice of ham in a shallow baking pan, and spread dressing on the ham. Place a second slice of ham on top. Stick whole cloves into the fat. Bake in Cinnamon Apple Salad.

(Serves 5)

2 cups granulated sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 1/2 cups water
Red vegetable coloring
5 medium sized apples (peeled and cored)
Bring sugar, cinnamon, and water to the boiling point and add sufficient vegetable coloring to tint mixture bright red color. Drop apples (peeled and cored) into boiling syrup and cook until apples are tender but firm. Remove and chill.

Serve on bed of water cress and fill core of apple with diced celery and chopped nuts. Serve with Roquefort dressing.

Bacon Baked Spaghetti.

(Serves 6-8)
1/2 package spaghetti
6 slices bacon
1/2 cup raw onion (cut fine)
2 1/2 cups tomatoes
1 cup cheese (grated)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Boil spaghetti until tender in boiling salted water. Drain. Cut bacon in small pieces and fry until light brown in color. Butter casserole, and place alternate layers of spaghetti, bacon, onion, tomatoes, and cheese in the casserole. Season each layer with salt and pepper, cover top layer with grated cheese and dot with butter. Bake approximately 30 minutes in a moderately slow oven (325 degrees).

A tiny sprinkling of ginger over roast beef gives it a yummy flavor. Meat loaf may be baked in a ring mold and served with parsley potato balls in the center.

Pour a bottle of gingerale over ham for baking, and baste occasionally. If you add a few drops of mint extract to whipped cream it makes a delicious topping for chocolate cake.

Household Hints.

Have you ever stopped to realize that every single one of us includes several hundred ordinary, homely household tasks in our daily routine?

Miss Howe has just given you a few of her time-savers and hints; but she also wants to share her favorite home-making trade secrets with you. All you have to do is write to Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, for her book, "Household Hints," and enclose 10 cents in coin.

Shawl to Match

A perfectly charming fashion is that of cunning little evening shawls made of the identical material that fashions the dress. The beautifully styled gown pictured is of black chiffon distinguished with an artfully shirred bodice that has an unusual halter-neck treatment and a graceful gathered-at-waist skirt. The little shawl of matching black chiffon is finished with hand-tied fringe. A black velvet dress with scarlet chiffon shawl is also a suggestion. The newest white jersey evening frocks have matching fringed shawls.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHENEVER I make a trip to New England I like to bring back something to remind me that there have been about 15 generations of homemakers in America since John Alden and Priscilla set up housekeeping in Plymouth colony. This time my treasure was the pair of ancient flat irons you see here in use as book ends for my work-room library of loose leaf binders. Setting them up reminded me that I have been wanting to show you my method of fastening booklets in ring binders.

I use 3/4-inch wide gummed tape. Pieces 2 1/2-inches long are folded in half. The fold end is stuck together and punched. These tabs are placed on the rings of the binder and booklet stuck between the open ends. We are inveterate booklet collectors on all sort of subjects. Frequently we cover binders with fabrics or interesting papers so they look attractive on the shelves in any room.

NOTE: Here is a good suggestion for keeping the series of sewing booklets which Mrs. Spears has prepared for our readers. There are five booklets available and a new one is published every other month. No. 5 contains directions for 30 different homemaking ideas, including new fall curtains; useful holiday gifts, and description of the other booklets in the series. When you write for your copy of Book 5 be sure to enclose 10c to cover cost and mailing. Send order to:

Cent—Official Name

While both "cent" and "penny" are used to designate our copper coin, it is defined in an act of congress of 1786 as: "Cent: the highest copper piece of which 100 shall equal to the dollar." When another act of congress outlawed the circulation of the English penny in America in 1787, however, the name "penny" was applied to the United States one-cent piece by popular usage, and it still is.—Pathfinder.

JACKSON SILVER UNIT, No. 68

Sixteen members attended the regular meeting Friday evening, Oct. 4. It was voted to have a public whist party Saturday, Oct. 12, at Harry Swift's, with Mrs. Florence Swift in charge.

Jackson-Silver Unit will entertain the Second District Council Wednesday evening, Oct. 30, at the Town Hall. This will be "Gents' Night and a dance will follow with a small "fine" for those not in costume. Department President and Department Membership Chairman are invited. President Mildred Cummings and Celia Lamb lead the Committee.

The Junior members met with their chairman, Mrs. Edith Littlefield, and several chairmen were appointed: membership, Edith Kenniston; Americanism, Cathryn Cummings; Rehabilitation, Ruth Morgan; sick committee, Joyce Cummings; Elsie Redman and Cathryn Cummings. A Halloween party is being planned.

The Post members also had an interesting meeting. The Sons of Legion was discussed and a sum of $100 set aside for a building fund.

Comrades A. Cummings, Clifford Barrett, Lamb and Smith reported the highlights of the Boston Convention and that the Post Flags were carried in their first National Parade for which the Post will receive credit.

The County Commander announced the next Council meeting will be in South Paris Oct. 15, and that State Commander Paul Julian of Waterville will be the speaker. He also reported attendance meetings in Canton and Livermore Falls this week.

Among the guests present were Comrades Forbes, Bennett, McAlister, Messerve and Commander Compa of George A. Mundy Post.

A delicious pot luck supper was enjoyed by all. Next meeting, Oct. 18, the October Birthdays will serve. They are Gertrude Redman, Eva Kenniston and Comrade Lewis Estee.

Percy Wilcox of Caribou, who has been to the Eye and Ear Infirmary for treatment spent the week end at the home of his mother in law, Mrs. Florence March.
